Miss Chapman | Third Grade | Painted Rock Academy

Next Week

Math

For Saxon Math, we will continue to work on long division with remainders. We will also work on changing mixed numbers to improper fractions and identifying quadrilaterals. There will be a math review on Thursday and a math test on Friday. Please be sure to look over the math practice test on Thursday night to ensure success on the test!

Reading

We will review George Washington Carver on Monday and there will be a test on Tuesday. Please look over the study guide this weekend to make sure your child is prepared for the test.

On Wednesday we will start reading a biography about Bessie Coleman. We will read the intro, about her childhood, her moving to Chicago and traveling to France this week.

There will not be reading homework this week!

BOOK REPORTS ARE DUE ON TUESDAY!

The PRA Spring Fling is on March 7th. Please sign up to help at the third grade booth!

Book Logs are due March 11th. 400 pages for Quarter 3.

Picture day is on February 26th! Students will be taking individual and class photos.

Please study for tests at home. There is study material available for all tests.

Science

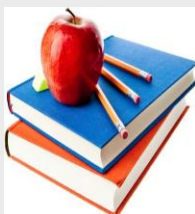

We will learn how to measure matter on Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday and Thursday there will be a science review. The science test will be on Friday. The study guide is going home today. Please start looking over it this weekend. Science tests are vocabulary heavy, I suggest making notecards to study vocabulary.

Language

We will continue our cumulative review. This week we will be reviewing regular and irregular verbs, verb tenses, and subject verb agreement. There will be a grammar test on Wednesday.

Spalding/Spelling

We will be on list #23. We will focus on the suffixes -able and -ment. We will also focus on the prefixes ap- and a-. We will finish our unit on figurative language this week.

Third quarter is the most difficult quarter of third grade and it is important to stay on top off the upcoming assignments, homework and tests.
